

ABSTRACT

An n-dimensional broken mesh network in which input output protocol processing block is connected to a broken link and external traffic link is connected to the input output protocol processing block. Broken link is formed by breaking connection between a starting 5 switching element and an ending switching element of each dimension in mesh network.